Our courses are designed in partnership with Cambridge University to develop the knowledge and insights required to negotiate the 21st Century proactively. They are also linked to the Round Square learning philosophy of Kurt Hahn. Students develop skills in self-awareness and independent study and are exposed to the latest skills and literacies as well as higher-order cognitive thinking skills.

Younger students take on a mix of subjects across the full syllabus. Older students need to specify whether they want to take Arts or Science subjects before the summer school begins.
